TO THE

TWENTY-FIRST EDITION.

JOHN OGILBY and WILLIAM MORGAN were appointed by King Charles II. and the Lords of his Council, to survey the Roads of England, which was accomplished at the Expence of 7000*l.* These Surveys were afterwards published under the Title of The Britannia, and consisted of one hundred Whole-sheet Maps, several Abstracts and Abridgements of which afterwards appeared. But even at that Time, there remained many trackless Forests and impervious Woods, which are now intersected with the finest Roads; and Journies from the northern and western Extremities of the Kingdom, which then were the Labour of some Weeks, attended with the greatest Fatigue, and often with imminent Danger, are now accomplished with Ease and Safety, within the Space of three or four days.

Notwithstanding the great Improvements of the Roads, yet the Traveller was frequently at a Loss which Course to take, when he found three or four Roads opening upon each other; and Ogilby and Morgan's Britannia, besides being in some Measure useless by the Alterations and Improvements introduced by Time, was was too expensive to be purchased by the Generality of Travellers, and too bulky to be conveniently carried, or immediately consulted.

From these Considerations, the Proprietors of this Work first caught the happy Thought of copying whatever was valuable and useful in Ogilby and Morgan, of obtaining an Account of all the new-made Roads, and of ascertaining the Distances of Places from the Metropolis, with all the Accuracy and Precision that could be expected from the closest Observations and the nicest Enquiries. Their Endeavours were attended with the greatest Success; and, by adopting a Plan so concise, they found themselves enabled to give, not only the principal and cross Roads in England and Wales, but also those of Scotland, as well as a complete List of all the Fairs in the Kingdom, the Times when held, and the Commodities sold at each; and all this in so small a Compass as to take up little Room in the Pocket, and to sell at so easy a Price, as to place its Purchase within the Reach of the most humble Traveller.

With Respect to the present Edition, neither Labour nor Expence has been spared to correct and improve it. The Names of 360 Places are added to the Index at the Beginning of the Work; and as all these Places lie in the principal and direct Roads, References are made to the Pages in which they are to be found. Every Road has been nicely examined; some that were become little frequented are omitted, and new ones added; others turned by shorter Routes; and the Distances more accurately ascertained. The Roads of Scotland are entirely on a new Plan, and so very different to what they were in former Editions, as to make their superior Utility obvious on the first View; nor are the Distances of the Scotch Cities and Towns from Edinburgh, and from each other, set down from imperfect Enquiries, but are taken from Copies made from actual Surveys. The late Regulations at the Post-Office have been duly attended to; and the List of Fairs in England and Wales have undergone a thorough and critical Revision.
the

Notwithstanding the Labour and Expence attending so many and such arduous Objects, and though the Prices of Paper and Binding are of late so considerably increased, yet the Proprietors of this Work, out of Gratitude for the favourable Reception the Public have always given this concise Vade Mecum, are determined still to sell it at its usual low Price, and accomodate the Traveller with his favourite Book, without laying on him what might, with Propriety, be considered as a just and equitable Advance.

Directions for passing over at Aust, and the New Passage between England and Wales, Twenty-five Miles from Bath. See p. 56.

ALL Southerly or Westerly Winds are called Winds below, and your passing over must be on the Ebb, or going out of the Tide; and you have seven Hours Passage.

All Northerly and Easterly Winds are called Winds above, then your Passage must be on the Flood, or coming in of the Tide, and then but five Hours Passage.

When the Wind and Tide go both one Way, there is no passing over.

It is computed, passing Aust and the New Passage varies half an Hour; so that when the Tide is coming in, and the Wind above, you may pass at the New Passage half an Hour sooner than at Aust; but the Tide going out and the Wind below, then at Aust, half an Hour before the New.

Prices of Goods, Cattle, and Passengers, going over at both Passages.

If thou art borrow'd by a Friend
Right welcome shall he be,
To read, to copy, Not To Lend
But to return to me.

Not that imparted Knowledge doth
Diminish Learning's store
But Books I find if often lent
Return to me no more.

Now slowly read, and often pause,
Think much, the Book keep clean,
And when return'd to me let not
The folded Leaves be seen.
